ABOUT THE FOUNDER

AMY COOPER holds a National Certification in Advanced Clinical Intervention (NCACIP) and is an International Master's Addictions Coach (IMAC) that envelops recovery, food, and gambling addiction along with anger management and family coaching certification as well.

Amy's journey over the past twenty years has given her experience to recognize and treat a variety of addictions. The challenges and opportunities that have arose along the way have expanded her level of gratitude.

The belief in HONESTY and FAITH as two of the most important keys to lifelong sober living is something that is held dear.

She has extensive experience with cognitive behavioral therapy and continues to work hands on training weekly. She routinely facilitates detox and arranges for next stage care, thus, introducing clients to long term recovery and all available workable solutions in the local community.

Amy maintains ongoing relationships with clients, WORKING SIDE BY SIDE with the families in the TRANSITION of their loved ones back into LIVING AND WORKING ENVIRONMENTS.

After completion of a 500 hour residential drug and alcohol federal program she is able to engage in the legality of addiction as well. Amy candidly shares with client's problems of her past. The previous twenty plus years of hurt, misperception, and bad habits that led to her addiction gives her the insight to recognize and assist others.

Being a member of National Association for Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Counselors (NAADAC) #140832 has exposed Amy to continuing education daily. Public speaking, author of blog and a facilitator of codependency book studies, teen coping mechanisms, and women's empowerment support group; Amy offers support for addicts and their loved ones whether one on one, group or sharing on social media.

She encourages her clients to BE HEALTHY with MIND, BODY, AND SOUL with routine exercise, meditation, and proper diet.

"I tell you the truth anyone who has faith in me the evidence of the miracles themselves." - John 14:12
